32 VERMONTERS NAMED

For Distinction at Officers' Training Camp at Plattsburg.

Thirty-two Vermont young men obtained certificates of commendation at the officers' reserve corps camp at Plattsburg, N. Y., last Saturday after one month's rigid training activities.

According to Col. C. E. Dentler, camp commander, the value of the certificates, which show the rating given each individual for military performances, is that they are a guarantee from the government that the holder may be enrolled in future officers' reserve camps for the completion of his military education, he having been selected at this camp as capable of making an acceptable officer. In another camp the men holding certificates will at once take prominent places in the organization of commands, being assigned to non-commissioned grades, platoon and company commanders as instructors.

The war department has ordered a second officers' training camp to be held at Plattsburg from July 15 to Sept. 16, and 700 of the members of the present camp have volunteered to remain and await the opening of the new camp. The present camp had an enrollment of about 4,000 from all parts of the East, but the next camp will have an enrollment of about 500 more. The age limits will be 18 to 40 for college men or college trained men.

Colonel Dentler has organized this unit of 700 odd into a battalion and they will continue drilling until the opening of the new camp, at which time they will receive assignments to non-commissioned grades with the pay of a private.

The list of certificate winners from Burlington and about the state follows:
